Everything Is Dandy

FROM where Reconversion Director John W. Smyder sits, in Washington, D. C. everything in the United States is dandy-almost everything Mr Snyder wishes there hadn't been so many strikes, but the figures show that cardian goods production now stands at the highest level in history, more than $150,000,- 00,000 a year, It is an impressive statistic.

This and all of Mr. Snyder's other evidence statistical Statisticians can do sonderful things. A year ago they concluded Washington there was going to be a hotesafe unemployment as soon as the war ended. It didn't hoppen Jobs are still looking for men Stalistici us now are able to convince Washington that price control is a huge success and inflation is being kept under control. They can prove with a couple ticks and Isrrups on their adding machines just about any proposition that the politicians need to have backed up with figures. Ferhaps Mr. Snyder honestly thinks everything is daily. Apparently be has sold Precident Truman You can bet Chaltman Hannegen is going to my everything is plus perfect. All of these men and a million others may see nothing but blue sky and bluebirds. But out where the cest of the citizens sit, things don't look so dandy. Civillan goods production may be at a new level in cheap dollars. Infidian may be under control. The weather may be nice, and maybe there will be ple for supp r if someone can find some sugar. But there are too many things to be considered on the other hand, like that can't be made because someone somewhere says no, stabilized prices that keep going up, stabilized purchasing power that keeps telling one another, "Boy, ala't this a mess" Mr Snyder, Mr. Truman et al shouldn't statistics so seriously. They should ask the statisticians what they think.

Settled Out of Court

THE easing of tension following signs that the Soviet Union and fran are about to settle their dispute out of court answers one question and poses another.

United Nations security council knows how it can get out of the situation created by Iran's complaint. But the council now wonders how it can get out of the situation created by Russin's refusal to have the complaint dealt with as a procedural matter.

Russia has snubbed the council in the first attempt to deal with an international situation lis delegate has absented himself from counci meetings and forced the other members into an awkward and embarrassing position. The theory of collective security has been challenged by one of the two strongest world powers.

This is not an auspicious beginning. It is in fact a very bad beginning. If there is a sense of relief in the prospect that the matter is going to be settled out of court, it is the kind of relief that comes from not being hit in the head with a hammer—it feels so good when it stops, Russia may have brought off a diplomatic but it was a triumph in the old tradition of diplomacy-the tradition that has produced two world wars in the 20th century and can produce another without much trouble.

Rough Idea

AMONG the wreckege in the wake of the Pacific tidal wave may be the plan of the United States armed services to experiment with underwater explosions of the atomic bomb. The possibility of danger is not so much in the bomb itself as in the repercussions.

There are many unsettled areas in the Pacific. subject to violent shiftings and settlings. The carthquakes that result have rarely started water motion of such magnitude as that of the giant swells which destroyed life and property this week, but each one is a potential disaster.

As the damage caused by the latest disturb-ance is comprehended, the men bearing responsolution for experiments with atomic explosion will be more sobered than ever by the impli-cations of the power in their hands. They hold the means of rocking the universe.

The atomic bombs now in existence are only a foretaste of the desiructive force within the reach of mankind. It is imaginable, for example. that the very islands of Japan might be dislodged by the explosive force inherent in the sudden release of atomic energy. In league with natural forces waiting to be released—the gravity of unbalanced land masses and slumbering volcanoes-an atomic bomb conceivably could alter the earth listif.

It was Monday, April 5, 1920.
The light for congressional reapportionment, giving states adjusted representation under the 1920 census, broke out anew just when administration leaders thought it was dead and buried for that session at least.
Twenty-five policeuren were on hand to preserve law and order as thousands of children under 10 years of age, attended the annual Easter Monday egg rolling on the White House lawn.

George B. Knapp was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Harding High Press club, his talk was on the subject, "Journalism."

AND NOW THIS

On return to civilian life, these same men, now 23 to 27 years of age, are naturally concerned with the finding of private employment at lincomes commensurate with millitary earnings.
